CASE #DEE 3870

Mr. Ted Hochstadt
Office of Hearings and Appeals
Department of Energy
Washington, DC 20461

Dear Mr. Hochstadt:

The information provided below responds to Citadel Corporation's letter of June 12, 1979, keyed to the order of their questions:

1. Percentage of total Agency supply of gasoline provided by Citadel - 100% leaded.
2. We are an end user of gasoline.
3. We operate from one fueling depot.
4. This Agency is experiencing great difficulty in conducting essential operations within current allocation levels.
5. We are not a retail outlet operator within the definition provided.

Sincerely,

[Redacted Signature]

Dear Customer:

As you are well aware gasoline supplies for the month of June are becoming tighter and tighter. Our current allocation fraction is 44%, and we are only allowed to sell to base period customers. In May our attornies filed for exception relief with the Department of Energy which, if granted, would give us additional gasoline to distribute to our customers in June and July.

The Department of Energy has requested additional information and wants to know the following:

1. What percentage of your total supply of gasoline comes from Citadel.
2. Are you an end user or a reseller of gasoline.
3. How many locations do you operate.
4. What hardships will you the customer encounter if you don't receive additional gasoline from Citadel.
5. With respect to retail outlet operators, the Department of Energy also wants to know your weighted average costs of gasoline from other suppliers and (if known) the costs for gasoline being paid by your competitors.

We request that you send this information to the following address with a copy back to Citadel (you may wish to delete from all copies other than the original submitted to the Department of Energy specific cost information and any other information you consider confidential):
